Think about it. How often in life do you get to change someone's life, how often do you get the opportunity to make a difference –where you can walk away feeling better yourself and leaving someone with joy and happiness?

The decision to become a Scuba Diving Instructor gives you a ticket to a completely new life path, and one that is not easy to find in every day normal life. I would almost go as far as equating it to taking a life coaching course.

Being an instructor, besides being a major accomplishment in diving, sets you on a path of self-discovery, problem solving and gaining immense confidence. You will gain empathy and understanding but more so you will experience the sheer joy and satisfaction of teaching something to someone that is potentially life changing for them!

Not for a single moment do I ever regret the decision to become an instructor. It will be difficult to make your millions as a dive instructor :) and although it can give you a very reasonable income if you choose it as a full time profession, it will enrich your life in many more ways than what money can ever give you.

It has changed my life irrevocably and has been one amazing journey, and I look forward to inviting you to let me take you on this journey with me and show you a whole new world :).
